Rogier chosen as assistant

Vince Rogier was hired Tuesday as the assistant principal at Coolidge Junior High School to replace Patricia Gonwa, new principal of Maryville Elementary School.

Monroe Worthen and Pete Novacich voted no. Jim Noth was absent.

Novacich said his vote was not a reflection on Rogier or his qualifications, but cited continued disagreement with the board's new policy allowing non-residents to be administrators.

Rogier, a special-education teacher in Granite City, resides in Glen Carbon. Cindy Mefford of Granite City was hired as a social studies and language arts teacher at Coolidge.

Talent show set

A talent show in conjunction with the Citywide Festival Against Drugs will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10, at the Granite City High School auditorium.

Ron Pennell will organize the show. Ticket reservations will be handled by the GCHS speech department.

Groups, families or individuals wanting to participate in the show are to call the Board of Education office at 451-5800 and give the name, address, telephone number and type of act.

Deadline for entries is Tuesday, Sept. 1.

Low police morale cited

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Manpower needs in the Granite City Police Department were "just a small part" of the dissatisfaction that prompted union members to express their loss of confidence in Chief Don Knight, a police union officer said.

The union official said low morale on the department and other matters were among the reasons cited by those who voted with the majority.

"This had nothing to do with politics or the mayor," the official said. "It had everything to do with the chief."

The Granite City police union voted Wednesday afternoon, 18 to 14, to express its loss of confidence in Knight's ability to perform his duties. A perceived manpower shortage was said by union sources to be one of the key reasons behind the vote.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse, who said he was not surprised by the vote, commented that most of the votes against Knight were motivated by politics.

Cruse and Knight both blamed a hiring freeze enacted by the City Council for the manpower shortage.

Cruse said the vote did not diminish his confidence in the chief and added that, while the manpower problem may be real, it is the fault of the mayor and aldermen, not the police chief.

The union has prepared a let-

Venice-built homes proposed

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

A proposal for new homes in Venice received enthusiastic applause from city officials at Tuesday night's Venice City Council meeting.

He said a survey of the city showed it had 145 empty lots and another 30 lots with houses that needed to be torn down.

"I got to wondering, 'What if we built a new brick house on each of those properties?' Is it possible?" The answer, Morris said, is yes, if the people of Venice will do it themselves. He said the idea came to him several days ago when he was talking to a young man who had recently graduated from high school.

"I asked him what he was to cost me about $100,000."

As a result, Morris said, he decided to take a hard look at Venice and what improvements could be made.

Since Morris estimated it may take about two years to finalize the sale of his company, he wondered if it was possible to spend $100,000 in a way that would add $100,000 to his selling price.

Felony cases piling up

Felony cases are backing up in Madison County courts, but the situation is not critical, according to Chief Criminal Judge Edward Ferguson.

Vacations, renovation of the County Courthouse in Edwardsville and a higher volume of felony charges have combined to increase the backlog of pending cases to 433 as of Monday.

Prosecutors are filing felony charges at a pace slightly faster than last year, which produced a record 1,769 new felony cases. As of Monday, 1,216 charges had been filed in 1992.

The backlog is just 30 short of the load last July, when officials initiated a blitz in which more than 200 cases were set for trial. Many cases were disposed of through plea bargains.

"I think we're in a little better shape as to the types of cases

(This year)," the Ferguson said. The docket is more current, with fewer old cases than last year, he said.

Decision time Vote will determine swimming pool plan

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

In 1929, the Park District went to the voters of Granite City with a proposal to replace an old sand-bottom pool with a modern swimming facility for the community.

The voters agreed with the park board and, for the next 52 years, the pool provided summer fun for Granite City residents.

But in May of this year, the board decided to close the deteriorated pool because of a variety of safety hazards. There were leaks in the floor and a number of other problems.

Time had taken a heavy toll. Yearly maintenance costs had escalated since the early 1970s and this trend had intensified in recent years.

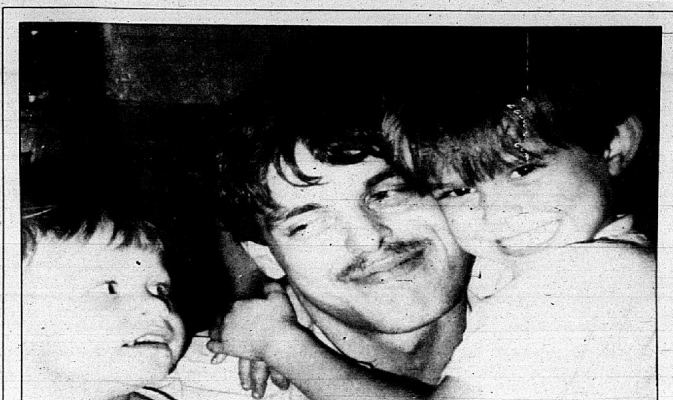

With the closing, the board was faced with two options in order to have swimming at Wilson Park in the future. It could either build a new facility or rehabilitate the old pool.

On Wednesday night, citing a "vision for the future," the board decided to pursue a new pool.

The proposal will go to the voters Nov. 3, in the form of a bond issue for $1,887,067.

Despite the fact that, in 1929, there were still vestiges of the Great Depression, voters reacted affirmatively to the construction plan and

The 911 emergency telephone system works.

Just ask Steve Holland of Madison. Holland, 26, was at home Tuesday evening with his two children, Stevie, 5, and Crystal, 3, while his wife, Lynnette, was at work.

Holland, who has a medical condition as a result of a work-related accident several years ago, suffered a seizure at about 8:30 p.m. and went into convulsions on the kitchen floor of his Fifth Street home.

"I forgot to take my medicine, and went into convulsions. Lynnette wasn't due to be home until after midnight. The paramedic said I would have been dead by then."

But Stevie saved the day.

Just as Lynnette had taught him, Stevie picked up the telephone and dialed 911. When the operator answered, Stevie said, "My daddy is having a zero."

After clarifying that Stevie meant "seizure," the operator dispatched an ambulance.

The ambulance arrived, stabilized Holland's condition, and took him to the hospital.

"When I first heard 911 started, I showed Stevie

Suspension of officer will end

Granite City Patrolman Dan Cochran will return to his duties at the police department Sept. 4.

Cochran was suspended from the department without pay Aug. 6 pending investigation of a domestic incident, according to a press release issued jointly Friday by Police Chief Don Knight and Cochran's attorney, Keith Jensen.

An investigation was conducted by the police department at Knight's request. As a result, administrative charges were filed before the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, the press release said.

"On Aug. 26, Officer Cochran stipulated to a violation of Order 129, interfering in an internal affairs investigation regarding inquiries into a pending investigation. All other charges were dismissed," the press release stated.

"Both the city and officer Cochran agree that justice was done and it's time to return to the job at hand, public safety."

The Board of Fire and Police Commissioners held a 30-minute, closed hearing Aug. 6 on undisclosed administrative charges against Cochran. He was suspended without pay as a result of that hearing. Prior to that action, he had been suspended with pay since July 13.

Saying disclosure of the charges against him would result in a "clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy," the board denied a Freedom of Information Act request from the Press-Record-Journal to disclose the charges against Cochran.

Sources said the charges were a result of an investigation prompted by a complaint by Cochran's former wife.

Time to apply for Newsboys funds

St. Louis-area charitable agencies serving children have a little more than one month left to apply for 1992 Suburban Newsboys Day funds.

To be eligible for consideration for 1992 funds, agencies must have completed applications either received or postmarked by Oct. 7.

To receive an application, agencies should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Old Newsboys Day Application, c/o Suburban Newsboys, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo. 63131.

Last year, more than $250,000 was raised by thousands of volunteers selling special Old Newsboys Day editions on street corners. Every penny raised by the corner sales is distributed to local agencies.

Nearly $5 million has been distributed since the drive started in 1957.

Ben Cole loads his father's trailer, which he and his wife, Laura, will drive to a Miami-area Red Cross relief station.

Couple helps storm victims

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Just before Hurricane Andrew hit southern Florida, Ben and Laura Cole moved back to Granite City from Miami.

To bring their belongings, the couple borrowed a trailer from Ben's father. A trailer that had to be returned to Miami this weekend.

Rather than pull an empty trailer back to Florida, the couple decided it would be nice to try to collect donations to aid the victims of the hurricane, which took more than a dozen lives Monday and caused billions of dollars in damage.

Donations were sought here by word of mouth. By Friday, the trailer had been filled with food, water, clothing and other items that will be taken to a Red Cross center in the Miami area.

Ben Cole plans to remain in Florida for awhile. Laura, a law-school student at Washington University in St. Louis, will return here this week.

Among donors are the Salvation Army, Catholic Charities, Protestant Welfare, employees of the First National Bank in Madison, Capri Sun, William and Joann Gummer, Millie Spahn, Mike and Jean Patton, Charles and Mary Atkins, Also, Doris and Carolyn Votaw, Diane Jensen, Connie and Joe McNeish, Bill and Bernice Duckworth, George and Dolores Vogeler, Mark and Liz Kautenberg, John and Pat Lowe, Tom and Dee Loyet, Mike and Denise Schmitt, Don and Dolores Kahn, the Rev. William Davis, Liz Payne and anonymous donors.

Collision leads to five citations

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

A traffic accident at 10:43 a.m. Friday at the intersection of Niedringhaus Avenue and Highway 3 resulted in five citations against one of the drivers.

David A. Pence, 24, of Wood River was charged with failure to wear a seat belt, disobeying a traffic control device, driving while his license was suspended, driving without proof of liability insurance and failing to reduce speed to avoid an accident.

Pence suffered cuts and bruises on his head and deep cuts in his right arm when his green 1981 Honda Accord, northbound on Highway 3, allegedly ran a red light and struck a Freightliner semi tractor-trailer.

The truck was owned by Beckmann Distribution Services Inc. of Carlyle and was driven by Jack G. Carson, 27, of Trenton, according to a police report.

onto southbound Highway 3 when it was struck by the Pence car in the middle of the intersection, according to the report. The passenger side of the car was demolished.

The front of the truck tractor also sustained considerable damage.

Pence was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was treated and released.

Two ambulances, a pumper truck and a rescue truck responded to the scene.

2 arrested for battery

Rebecca L. Stephens, 19, of the 2100 block of Terminal Avenue and Helen C. Burgess, 32, of the 4000 block of Braden Avenue were arrested at 7:35 p.m. Aug. 27 for battery.

Burgess told police Stephens slapped her in the face in an incident in the 4000 block of Braden. Stephens told police Burgess pulled her hair and slapped her.

DUI, battery alleged

Karen Sue Dalton, 40, of the 1900 block of Lynn Avenue, was arrested at 10:16 p.m. Aug. 26 for battery and driving under the influence of alcohol.

An officer responding to an accident at Myrtle and St. Clair avenues reported seeing Dalton strike another officer in the face with her hand.

Dalton was lodged pending $214 cash bail.

DUI, lane usage arrest

John C. Norris, 53, of the 2400 block of Benton Street, was arrested at 10:04 p.m. Aug. 23 for driving under the influence of alcohol and improper lane usage.

An officer on a routine traffic stop near Maryville Road and Highway 202 reported almost being hit by a maroon 1984 Chevrolet Caprice that was passing by.

The officer stopped the car, and Norris, the driver, took two field sobriety tests and refused to take a breath analysis test, according to a police report.

Norris posted his driver's license and $107 cash as bail and was released.

Held on six charges

James D. Rogers Jr., 30, of the 2200 block of Iowa Street was arrested at 3:43 p.m. Aug. 23 for driving under the influence of alcohol, obstructing a peace officer, improper lane usage, failure to signal and driving without a license.

An officer reported seeing a blue 1981 Mercury driving fast on the parking lot between K mart and Dave's Movies and More.

The car headed north on Nameoki Road, weaving back and forth between lanes, according to a police report, and made a right turn onto Amos Avenue, allegedly without signaling.

Rogers allegedly gave police a false name. When his identity was discovered, it was learned he was wanted on a warrant alleging he failed to appear in court on a charge of retail theft.

Rogers was lodged pending bail.

unlikely to change.

Morris said there is nothing special about the people who have learned trades and "our people can learn them just as well as anyone else."

He said his chance conversation with the young man convinced him that Venice is full of young people who would jump at the chance to learn if it were offered.

"Don't ever let this community slip down into a pit we can't get out of," Morris said. "We can do this in Venice."

Gambling operations shut down

By Ken Bourne
Staff writer

With the media in tow, Illinois State Police made two unannounced visits to local businesses Wednesday afternoon to shut down gambling operations.

Police raided Scott Air Force Base VFW Post 4183 on Illinois Route 161 at 3 p.m. and Thunderbird Restaurant, 1053 Wherry Road in O'Fallon, later in the afternoon.

State police confiscated four electronic poker gambling machines at the VFW and one at the Thunderbird.

The machines could have generated up to $2,000 a week for the taverns, or $100,000 over a one-year period, Master Sgt. Vic Morris said.

Police confiscated only the machines which had paid off undercover officers during their investigation in recent days, Morris said.

The poker machines are legal in the state, but when players are paid money for the points they accumulate, they are considered illegal gambling devices.

The raid, the third in the last six months for the Scott VFW, came at the request of several phone calls to the law enforcement agency, Morris said.

"We've had a lot of complaints in the last few weeks from husbands and wives that their spouses have lost their entire paycheck playing the machines at the Scott VFW," said Morris.

He mentioned that the gambling operation has been taking place near the base for at the last five years.

Scott VFW bartenders Priscilla Hooke, 54, of Belleville and Dawn Stark, 28, of Lamont, Mo., and Helen Beale, 61, of Macomb, a Thunderbird bartender, were charged with operating a gambling house, a misdemeanor.

All three posted $100 bond and were released.

The two establishments could receive fines of $300 to $20,000 or have their liquor licenses suspended or revoked, said Bonds Robinson Jr., a special agent for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission who attended the raids and issued violation notices.

Morris said the television crews and newspaper reporters were invited to the raids to "showcase" the efforts of the state police and illustrate the harm caused by small gambling operations.

"People don't realize that these machines have harmed a lot of people's lives. They don't realize the magnitude of money that is lost," Morris said.

Robinson said the poker machines are not regulated by the state and conflict with the state's lottery.

But Mike Savoy, 52, an O'Fallon resident who is retired from the Air Force, was upset by the state police's raid of the Scott VFW.

"This is a two-bit operation. I'd rather see these people in uniforms out on the street busting the murderers and drug dealers," said Savoy, who said he saw the machines as a form of entertainment.

doing now and he said "Nothing. Nothing. So I asked him how he'd like to be a bricklayer," Morris said. "He said 'he didn't know how.'"

"Well, I told him I know a lot of bricklayers and there's nothing special about them. The only difference between them and him is they know how to lay bricks and he can learn that, don't you see, he can learn that."

Morris said the young man said he could easily round up six more young people who would be willing to learn. That, Morris said, is the way the city could fill the empty lots.

"If eight to 10 people are building houses while learning bricklaying, carpentry and other building trades, it can be done cheaply," he said.

"I know selling them would be the next problem, but I really believe if we can keep the price at $25,000 to $30,000 we will have no problem bringing in 150 new families that will become good citizens and taxpayers," Morris said.

"Even more important, we will have trained these people to build houses."

Morris said he learned bricklaying when volunteers built brick covers on the cellar entrances at St. Mary/St. Mark School in Venice. He said he and his workers learned to build with overhead structural steel when his company couldn't afford to have a new building built and made the building themselves.

You look around right now and there is not one project going on in Venice that Venice people can't be trained to do themselves," he said.

A recurring complaint at Venice City Council meetings is that contractors on projects paid for by the city do not use subcontractors based in Venice and do not hire residents of Venice as workers, Morris said that is unlikely to change.

"Oh, you might get the contractors to hire one or two people here and there. But, if in the next two or three years we can train a cadre of people, we can do 100 percent of the work ourselves," he said.

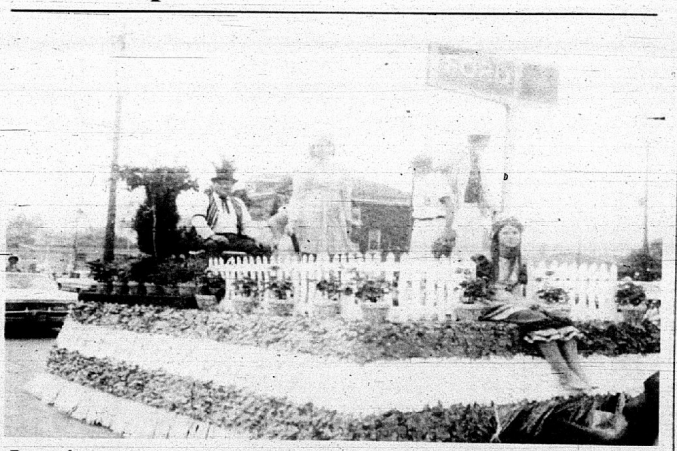

And after they're trained, they will be going out to work in other communities — like Highland — and it will be the Highland council complaining about hiring people from here.

IP joins campaign against drug abuse

Illinois Power is joining law enforcement agencies across Illinois to reduce the number of kids experimenting with illegal drugs and alcohol.

Representatives of Illinois Power appeared before a gathering of more than 400 law enforcement officers in Springfield in early August to announce the company's backing of the national anti-drug program DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education).

Illinois Power will provide manpower and other resources to the campaign.

An estimated 408,500 students statewide have participated in the DARE program since January 1987.

Participating fifth and sixth graders in more than 1,500 public and private schools in Illinois spend one hour a week for 17 weeks in class with a specially trained uniformed officer.

The program aims to teach them to resist peer pressure in making decisions, especially those involving tobacco, drugs and alcohol.

A chief goal of DARE is to slow the demand for illegal drugs by educating youngsters about drugs at an early age.

More than 15 percent of all criminal arrests in the United States in 1990 were arrests of minors, according to the FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting Section. Of those, more than 64,000 cases were drug violations, and thousands more involved burglary and other charges related to drugs.

In Illinois, one in five high school seniors in a 1991 survey reported current use of marijuana, according to the state Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse. One in 10 had tried cocaine.

"We firmly believe in the DARE message," said Barbara Caspary of Illinois Power. "As a company, we are concerned about both our future customers and our future work force. Drug abuse and alcohol use threaten both."

Among IP's plans for DARE is statewide "letter to the governor" competition.

Participating students will enter letters to Gov. Jim Edgar describing their views on the dangers of drugs. Four state winners will meet Edgar and attend an IP-sponsored luncheon with their parents, teachers and DARE officers.

City budget cuts raises for treatment plant employees

By Bob Slato
Staff writer

The Granite City Council passed a 1992-93 budget for the regional wastewater treatment plant Tuesday, but not the same budget passed by the regional board in May.

Sewage Treatment Plant Superintendent Terry Kelahan said the action will cause headaches for himself and for the city of Glen Carbon, the Metro East Sanitary District and Madison County Special Service Area 1, other users of the facility.

The Regional Board adopted a regional budget which includes the salaries of plant employees of $3,159,290 on May 21.

When that figure is added to the proposed Granite City portion of the budget, $870,539, a total budget of $4,029,819 is obtained.

But, because the figures included a provision for a 4 percent raise for treatment plant employees, several aldermen balked at the proposal when it was initially presented to the City Council Aug. 11.

The City Council has adopted a general fund budget which includes pay raises for no city employees except firefighters, who accepted a 4 percent salary increase in negotiations last year.

Treatment plant employees, members of Operating Engineers Local 620, have yet to negotiate a contract with the city this year.

Following a combined Finance and Pollution Plant Committee meeting Tuesday, Pollution Plant Committee Chairman Paul Fisk presented the council a budget which included no raises.

The revised $3,977,731 budget passed by a 9-3 vote.

Fisk said the revision will require an adjustment in user fees charged to Glen Carbon, the Metro East Sanitary District and the county (Quad City area) sanitary sewer district, which share the cost of operating the plant.

Glen Carbon, MESD and the county sewer district pay fees based on the amount of waste they send to the plant. The rates for those fees were set when the regional board adopted its budget.

Kelahan said he prepared the budget with the salary increase because, historically, other city employees have negotiated raises equivalent to those obtained by firefighters, and the wage increases are traditionally retroactive.

The inclusion of the line item reduced the possibility that Glen Carbon, MESD and the county district would be hit with a large, lump-sum payment later in the year, he said.

Alderman Andy Timko said he believes that, if one city department's employees get a raise, all union city employees should.

If the operating engineers receive a raise later in the year, the fees will once again have to be revised, Kelahan said.

The salary figure, revised to $1,278,047 from $1,330,135, was the only difference between the revised budget and the budget as initially proposed.

Aldermen Judy Whitaker, Jeff Worthen and Sandy Crites voted against adopting the revised budget. Aldermen Fisk, Timko, Jim Miller, Walter Milton, Dan Partney, Dan Brown, Ginny O'Beary, Tom Candler and Craig Tarpoff voted in favor of it.

Milton, chairman of the Finance Committee, suggested that, in future years, the city review and adopt the WWTP budget at the same time the regional board does so.

Jensen defends work for Pontoon Beach

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

Before he sat down at his desk for an interview Thursday afternoon, Keith Jensen brought in a sizable quantity of legal documents and dropped them on the desk.

"That's just for August," Jensen said.

Jensen, the village attorney for Pontoon Beach, responded to allegations from the village board, namely trustee Bob Douglas, that he does not do enough work for the village. Jensen has referred the board to attorney Dean Sweet, who is doing some work for Pontoon Beach.

"There are about 250 pages right here of correspondence and other pending litigation," Jensen said of the pile of papers on the desk. "Pontoon Beach has created an enormous amount of legal work."

"I would stand on my record that I have been doing my work," the contents of Mr. Douglas are unfounded," Jensen said.

Douglas voiced a motion to amend the village's bill list last week to hold Jensen's $350,900 paycheck. The board members reasoned this was necessary because they felt that Jensen was difficult to contact, was absent from meetings on a regular basis, and doesn't work enough for Pontoon Beach. The board voted 5-1 to withhold the check.

In response to Douglas' allegation that Jensen is "hard to get a hold of," Jensen said he has a beeper, two cellular telephones, two office phones, plus his home phone as means of communicating with the board.

"If they needed me right now, they have my beeper number," he said. "I'm sure they can contact me."

There is no binding ordinance stipulating that Jensen must attend village meetings on a regular basis. He said that he checks with the board from week to week on which meetings he should attend.

Jensen, who had prior obligations, said he would have sent another attorney to last Tuesday's board meeting, but he added that the board said that would be unnecessary.

There are about 250 pages right here of correspondence and other pending litigation. Pontoon Beach has created an enormous amount of legal work.

— Keith Jensen

Jensen last year gave the board a resignation letter but it was not accepted. Therefore, he said, he is still technically a temporary village attorney.

Another sticking point that has soured relations between the board and Jensen is the board's refusal to grant Jensen a pension under the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund.

An attorney needs to work 12 hours a week on a government's legal tasks in order to be eligible for the IMRF. The board voted down Jensen's request because it believed he did not meet the 12-hour requirement.

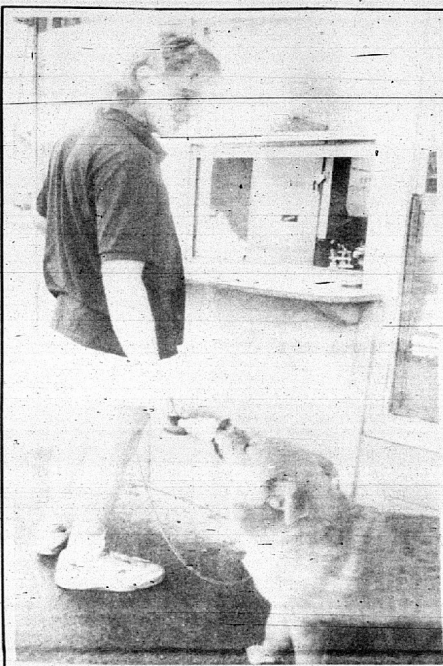

"I'm staying as a temporary attorney until everything I'm involved in is done," said Jensen, who has served as the village's attorney since 1983.

"It would behoove the board to find another attorney who would accept the amount of work that they have. I'm the only village employee who hasn't had a raise since 1986."

Jensen said Douglas' remarks actually were more personally directed than personnel directed. "I think he has more ulterior motives," Jensen said. "His actions are a deterrent to good government just because other people want to play politics."

"I don't mean that I'm going to lower my standards. I think it's obvious to me and anyone else in the village what his motives are. There have been numerous times when Mr. Douglas has attempted to inject pure politics into situations."

Efforts to reach Douglas for comment were unsuccessful.

Ignore Klan rally, residents urged

Police officials and civil rights activists are urging citizens to ignore an invitation from the Ku Klux Klan to a national rally and cross-lighting in the yard of a Foster Township Klansman.

Fliers are being dropped in driveways from Bethalto to Alton, inviting residents to a white separatist rally Sept. 12.

"Under our constitution, it is their right to hold a rally," said the Rev. Johnny Scott, president of the East St. Louis Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"But, respectable citizens should not participate in this. I urge them to ignore such a gathering."

The KKK member, who refused to give his name, plans to host the rally at 6 p.m. in his front yard in the 3900 block of Torch Club Road. He said the event was attracting Klansmen from all over the country.

The Klan's national grand wizard, Thomas Robb, is scheduled to speak, and a cross burning ceremony will be held at dusk.

"Robb is coming to town, and we're having a reunion," said the Foster Township Klansman. "It's just a rally about nothing."

"We aren't having it for a particular reason. We're holding it so people can get together."

Despite a lack of purpose for the rally, Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich said his department was closely monitoring the event.

"We're aware of the circumstances," he said. "We've known about this for some time, and we are preparing for any kind of trouble that may come up."

Churchich, who declined to say what type of police action would be used, said his department had received calls from concerned and frightened residents.

"Some people are very concerned," he said. "We're not handling this situation lightly; we're taking it very seriously."

The Foster Township Klansman said he did not expect trouble or a need for police intervention.

"We won't allow drugs, firearms or alcohol," he said. "If anyone tries to get on my property with that stuff, they'll be turned away."

He said the rally was not intended to stir up hatred against blacks.

"We're really just a religious group, and we're always getting a bad rap," he said. "There's a family of blacks that live down the street from me, and they don't cause me any trouble."

A Bethalto woman who said she was offended when a flier was thrown in her driveway said the rally should be stopped.

"It makes me mad," said the woman, who asked not to be identified. "The flier came inside some kind of Klan newspaper, and I think it's terrible. I'm very much against it."

"Here they are having this rally in a rural area that has always been so nice and peaceful," she said. "We're all Americans, and I'm tired of people trying to segregate."

"I don't want to be aware of the rally until we were contacted by a reporter, urged people to ignore the Klan's plea for support."

My advice is to let them have their little rally and then get back home," he said. "We're looking for is attention. They want someone to speak out against them."

New MAC commander takes over

By Ken Bourne
Staff writer

Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman assumed command of the U.S. Transportation Command and Air Mobility Command Forces morning at Scott Air Force Base.

The ceremony marking the change also recognized the retirement of Fogleman's predecessor, Gen. Harston T. Johnson, who had served in the dual position since September 1989.

Fogleman, 50, said the focus of his command will be to provide global mobility in support of America's security interests and continuing the visionary work of Johnson, who streamlined operations and decreased bureaucratic tangles in the organizations during his three years at the post.

The general said he expects further changes during his command of the two organizations.

"On my watch, in all likelihood, change will be the hallmark of these commands. Changes in the world order, changing threat, and a changing resource environment demand change in our organizational structure and outlook," Fogleman said.

Joint and combined operations are the order of the day. As America downsizes its forces, we must sweep away the tendency to preserve programs and missions traditionally assigned to these commands and their predecessors.

"I can think of no more exciting or challenging command to be assigned to during the decade of the 90s," he added.

Previously, Fogleman was the commander of the 7th Air Force, Pacific Air Forces, at Osan Air Base, Korea.

He received Senate confirmation for the Scott post Aug. 12. Johnson, 56, will retire Tuesday after 37 years in the Air Force. He directed the transportation operations during the Persian Gulf War and the deployment of 40,000 troops and their supplies to Panama during Operation Just Cause.

Johnson also directed humanitarian projects in northern Iraq and Bangladesh.

Adm. David E. Jeremiah, vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Merrill A. Tonny McPeak were present at the ceremony to administer the change of command.

President has 50/50 chance, delegate says

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

If President George Bush wants to win his bid for re-election he should stick to the issues and never mention his opponent by name, said Dr. Wilson West, a recent Illinois delegate to the Republican Convention.

West, 78, of Belleville should know a thing or two about elections. He has been a delegate at the last seven Republican Conventions and has met all of the republican nominees for president since Herbert Hoover.

He says Bush has a 50/50 shot at winning the election. Bush's speeches at the convention did not necessarily do anything to bolster his image, West said. He laid the same odds on Bush's re-election after the convention as before.

"His strength in speech making is better for a smaller audience than an audience like the one at the convention," he said.

"He can really sell himself to a smaller audience. West said in 1978 when Bush spoke in Belleville he made a much better impression on the small audience of 300-400 than he did at the convention. Overall the convention was a good forum for discussing the mental issues of this election.

The main topics were family values, the economy and foreign policy. But delegates still got a chance to discuss subjects with a more narrow focus such as prayer in schools, condom distribution and sex education.

He said even with such major problems facing the nation such as unemployment, the national debt and the war in Eastern Europe there is still a need for discussion of the smaller issues that fit close to home.

West said this convention was different from the others he has attended in that he has never been to one where the democratic opponent has had such a large margin in the polls before the convention.

Strangely enough West considers Bush's opponent, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, to be a "fine man."

However, West feels Clinton has a lot to learn about politics before he can become president. "I would say that if George Bush is in high school then Bill Clinton is in the first grade," West said.

Farm leaders, Edgar lobby Bush over corn-based ethanol

SPRINGFIELD — Farm leaders used a campaign appearance to plant a kernel with President Bush that they hope will grow into relief for corn-based ethanol fuels.

Farm leaders and Gov. Jim Edgar lobbied Bush last Sunday on proposed federal environmental rules that threaten to eliminate ethanol fuel use in nine major metropolitan markets, which would hurt the state's farm and ethanol industries.

After the closed-door meeting, Bush whipped up an estimated 5,000 banner-waving Republicans packed in the Coliseum at the Illinois State Fair in a 10-minute campaign speech.

Bush did not mention ethanol in the speech, which was full of attacks on Democrats in Congress and other themes the president had emphasized in his address to the Republican National Convention in Houston last Thursday night.

Edgar and Illinois Farm Bureau President John White, upset with an earlier announcement by the federal Environmental Protection Agency that ethanol would likely be banned under Clean Air Act regulations, telephoned Bush before his arrival in Springfield and the president agreed to meet with farm leaders, Edgar, State Agriculture Director Becky Doyle and others.

Edgar quoted the president as saying in the 15-minute meeting, "I don't know how we got into this situation because I'm for ethanol."

White said Bush made no commitment to reverse the U.S. EPA proposed regulation but pledged to give the issue his personal attention.

EPA Administrator John Reilly said last week that he did not expect ethanol to be used in the major markets where pollution is a problem, including Chicago. Illinois produces most of the nation's ethanol for gasoline blends. It provides an estimated $200 million to the state's manufacturing economy and an estimated 20 cents more per bushel to the price of corn for Illinois and other Midwestern farmers. Corn was selling at $2 a bushel last week.

Sieve Wentworth, past president of the Illinois Corn Growers Association, who was also at the meeting with Bush, said the president's "jaw dropped and he seemed surprised by some of the things we told him."

Wentworth charged the EPA regulations unfairly discriminated against ethanol and favored new formulated fuels refined by big oil companies.

Edgar discounted suggestions by some farmers that powerful oil companies oppose ethanol and have influence with the EPA because of Bush's background in the oil business in Texas.

The governor said he believed it was the first time Bush had heard agricultural interests on the issue rather than "bureaucrats at the EPA."

"The farmers who meet with the president were well-prepared and gave him a different perspective than he had before and I think it did have an impact," Edgar said.

Edgar also conceded that whatever decision is made on ethanol would have political consequences for Bush.

State Sen. Frank Watson, R-Greenville, whose new district includes most of rural Madison County, said he was disappointed Bush did not refer to the ethanol issue in his speech. Watson said ethanol is of major importance to the Illinois economy.

"There are still meetings going on and hopefully it's going to be favorable for ethanol," Watson said.

Shimkus reverses self on ethanol

SPRINGFIELD — John Shimkus, Madison County treasurer and congressional candidate, said he has reversed his earlier stand and now favors government incentives for ethanol.

At a press conference Wednesday, the Republican candidate labeled all environmentalists as "extremists," saying "I don't think there are mainstream environmentalists. There are just extreme environmentalists."

Shimkus, who is running against U.S. Rep. Richard Durbin, D-Springfield, Congress' foremost champion of ethanol, said he has changed his position on ethanol as a result of an earlier "lack of knowledge" — a congressional race is a very educational experience.

Shimkus said he was "100 percent" for ethanol incentives and agreed completely with Durbin on the issue.

He also announced a farm advisory committee chaired by rural Edwardsville farmer Dave Hubbard to help him on agriculture issues.

Shimkus came under fire at a Madison County

Farm Bureau meeting in May when he said he would not have voted for a bill sponsored by Durbin that reversed his earlier stand on ethanol.

As a result of meetings with Farm Bureau officials and farmers, he said, "I've learned tremendous amounts about ethanol such as it's a renewable source and cleans the air ... information I have now I didn't have at that initial Farm Bureau meeting in May."

Shimkus said he would "support anything we can do to increase markets for Illinois corn, but only would say he was supporting "tax incentives to make ethanol on a par with oil-based gasoline."

Durbin aide Mike Daly noted that the tax breaks for ethanol fuels is intended to give them an advantage over regular gasoline so they can get established in the market.

Lifestyle essay contest begins

The Granite City Drug and Alcohol Task Force will sponsor an essay contest in conjunction with the Citywide Festival Fight Against Drugs.

The theme of the essays is "Why I believe I or my family live a healthy lifestyle." The essay should be 250 words or less and should be submitted by Friday, Sept. 4.

Prizes will be awarded in five categories — family, all ages, senior citizen 55 or older, adult, 18 to 34, junior senior, high grades 7-12, and youngster, Kindergarten through grade 6.

Paula Hubbard, drug abuse prevention specialist at Coordinated Youth Services, is contest chairperson.

Winners will receive trophies and will ride in convertible autos in a parade on Saturday, Sept. 12. The winning essays will be printed in the Granite City Press-Record/Journal during Fight Against Drugs Festival week and will also be on display at the Ice Skating rink in Wilson Park on Sept. 12.

Entries must be received by Hubbard at Coordinated Youth Services, 1254 Niedrighaus Ave. on or before Friday, Sept. 4. The judging committee will consist of area educators and Press-Record/Journal journalists.

For further information, persons may call Hubbard at 876-8180.

Much interest shown in sale of county-owned properties

Officials looking to hawk vacant county-owned property are posting lots for sale, and all signs indicate they may sell quickly at a December auction in Collinsville.

The Edwardsville real estate firm hired to help put the property back on Madison County tax rolls has recently been deluged with calls from potential buyers. "We're working hard at it," said Jack Butler, who heads the auction department at Joseph E. Meyer & Associates.

The county hired the firm in December to help put more than 800 pieces of county-owned property in the hands of responsible taxpayers. Many of the lots are overgrown with weeds and are an eyesore to neighbors. All sit idle and contribute nothing to tax rolls.

Most of the property, which includes some homes, is in Alton, Madison and Venice.

In September, Butler said, postcards will be sent to people living near the property. By Nov. 4, a catalog of all the property will be available. "It takes an enormous amount of work to put these together," he said.

The firm's fee will be $150 a parcel or 25 percent of the sale price, whichever is higher. The county will keep 5 percent to cover its costs, and the rest will go to other taxing districts.

In addition to the 800 pieces of property the county owns, the company is in the process of acquiring another 300 abandoned parcels for the county.

Butler said that as many as 600 people were expected to attend the property auction, set for Dec. 2 and 3 at the Gateway Center in Collinsville.

He said he couldn't predict how much money the auction would add to the county coffers. Some plots in good shape could go cheaply, while others that need a lot of work might bring in more money than expected, he said.

"I've seen thousands of these things sell," Butler said.

'Puppy mill' home in Caseyville is removed

By Angie Cairns
Staff writer

A mobile home at 320 Brookside Drive in Caseyville that once housed an illegal puppy mill has been removed.

A St. Clair County circuit judge ordered Aug. 3 that the mobile be taken off the lot. The owner complied on Aug. 14, a village official said.

The property is legally owned by Iris Dunham. Her daughter, Linda Dunham, lives in a second mobile home on the lot.

This property, and the two mobile homes, has been an issue with the village for months.

Neighbors complained to the village board in February that the lot was not kept up. They were also upset about a puppy mill that had been removed from the home earlier that month, and about the general condition of both homes.

In February, Village Attorney David Bone advised the board that the rear mobile home would have to be removed because it presented a health hazard.

With the mobile home gone, at least one neighbor is pleased but not completely satisfied.

Claudine Simpson, who lives on Brookside Drive with husband Bob, said the lot has not been cleaned up. "She (Linda Dunham) doesn't really keep it up," Dunham, however, thinks otherwise.

Earlier this year, Dunham received lists of necessary changes from Zoning Administrator G.W. Scott. Dunham said Monday that she has done everything on the lists, including moving her dog from the front porch to the back yard, getting a new front door and improving the housekeeping throughout the mobile home.

"I did all kinds of repairs," she said.

Scott could not be reached to comment on whether Dunham has done everything she was asked to do.

HEEL PAIN?

If you are suffering from pain located at the bottom of the heel, you may have plantar fasciitis. Plantar fasciitis refers to inflammation of a ligament that attaches to the heel bone and fans out into the toes. The inflammation may be due to a variety of etiologies, almost all of which can be resolved through conservative treatments.

If you have been putting up with this discomfort, feel free to call the specialists of the Foot Health Centers.

Lawmakers predict repeal of purchasing law

SPRINGFIELD—State senators have been warned that a law doing away with bids for goods and services costing less than $25,000 could lead to waste and abuse.

Members of the Senate State Government Organization and Administration Committee predicted the changes would be repealed in the Legislature's fall session.

The legislation, which became effective June 30, eliminates detailed requirements that state agencies obtain written bids for purchases of $5,000 or more. It raises the threshold for "competitive selection" to $25,000.

The law also removes a mandate that state agencies award purchasing contracts to the lowest responsible bidder. The bill was signed by Gov. Jim Edgar the day after it was passed by the Legislature in the hectic final days of the session in early July.

Witnesses before the committee said the changes to the Purchasing Act, slipped through in a bill containing several other changes to various laws just before the Legislature adjourned, were a step backward and contrary to the taxpayers' interest.

Only state Central Management Services Agency Director Steven Schnorf, whose office proposed the changes to the governor's Budget Bureau, defended them at the hearing.

But Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, said, "A mistake was made." There is a strong probability this is going to be repealed when we come back in November. North, state purchasing agent from 1974 to 1980, testified the changes could hurt the state, which previously had some of the best safeguards in the nation against purchasing abuses.

The $25,000 threshold is higher than any other state's and the new law shifts centralized purchasing for items below the limit from Central Management Services to individual agencies. North said the change could cost taxpayers millions because savings on bulk purchases would be lost.

Robert Lorenz, a recently retired state purchasing official, argued that by raising the limit "the opportunities for favoritism and outright fraud are greatly enhanced."

Representatives of the construction industry also objected to eliminating the requirement that contracts be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder and said they feared political favoritism would result.

Schnorf contended the concerns were exaggerated, however, because his agency has issued administrative rules requiring departments to go through his agency for volume purchases of commonly used items, vehicles, data processing paper and stationery. Such items aside, he said, only $66 million of $183 million in purchases of $25,000 or less would be exempt from competitive requirements, based on last year's trends.

He said the new law allowed his agency to eliminate 14 of 31 staffers in its purchasing division. The $5,000 limit meant about half the staff time was spent on less than 10 percent of the purchases, he said.

Schnorf also said that of 23,132 orders placed last year by his agency, only 864 would have been affected by the change.

He said the legislative changes were proposed in June when it appeared his agency would face a $15 million budget cut.

Schnorf admitted the changes had not been discussed with the sponsors of the bill before they were presented for a vote. He said legislative staffers had been informed but he couldn't identify them.

Demuzio said lawmakers had only about 20 minutes to examine the bill before voting. He added there was pressure to bring the session to an end by passing a budget.

Vanessa Vargo performs at the Miss Collinsville Pageant.

Vargo records her first song, competes in Collinsville pageant

Vanessa Kaye Vargo of Granite City was a contestant in Saturday's Miss Collinsville Pageant at the Miner Theater.

A country western singer-songwriter and guitar player, Vargo also recently traveled to Branson, Mo., to a recording studio and recorded her first song.

She went again to record more songs on Aug. 12. Vanessa also appeared on KIX 104 FM, a country station in St. Louis. She was interviewed and asked questions. Her letter to the station was read and a portion of her first song was played.

Christina Dressel of O'Fallon won the Miss Collinsville Pageant and was crowned Miss Collinsville 1992.

First runner-up was Karen Fitzgerald, 20, of Collinsville; second runner-up was Kara Hester, 19, of Maryville; and third runner-up was Regina Youngblood, 22, of Chicago, a student at SIUE.

NATO officials to address RCCG breakfast meeting

What are the current risks and challenges of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization? What is the status of dialogue and cooperation with NATO's former enemies?

These and other important issues will be discussed by a briefing team from the NATO's Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic (SACLANT) at a breakfast meeting on Thursday, Sept. 17, at the Missouri Athletic Club.

The event is sponsored by the Regional Commerce and Growth Association, Military Affairs Community and the Navy League's St. Louis Council. The event is open to the public and the cost is $12 per person. Tables of eight are available for $96. For reservations, call 444-1173 or 1-800-444-SOLD.

Illustrated through a slide presentation, the briefing team discusses the recent changes to the security environment with emphasis on NATO's relevance and response. The team will respond to questions from the audience.

Members of the team are U.S. Navy Capt. James A. Roebach, II, assistant chief of staff, communications and electronics at SACLANT headquarters in Norfolk, Va.; a Royal Netherlands Navy Cmdr. Harko F. Iordijk, NATO exercise planner; Royal Navy Cmdr. John Hartley, staff officer in meteorology; and U.S. Navy journalist Michael R.

Marsh. NATO's origin dates back to the aftermath of World War II as small defenseless nations fell behind the Iron Curtain. The free countries of North America and Europe became convinced that a strong alliance was necessary for the security and survival of all.

NATO headquarters is located in Brussels, Belgium. Representatives from 16 nations make up the North Atlantic Council, NATO's highest decision-making body.

The chiefs of defense of the member nations form the NATO Military Committee, which provides guidance to the three major NATO commanders, the Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, the Supreme Allied Commander Europe and the Commander-in-Chief Channel.

Regardless of recent events, NATO's fundamental security tasks remain unchanged. They are to provide one of the foundations for a stable security environment in Europe based on the growth of democratic institutions and commitment to the peaceful resolution of disputes; to serve as a trans-Atlantic forum for allied consultations on any issues that affect their vital interests; to deter and defend against any threat of aggression against any NATO member state; and to preserve the strategic balance within Europe.

Toxic chemical emissions

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency reported that 232,608,237 pounds of toxic chemicals were released into the environment in 1990.

The IEPA's fourth annual Toxic Chemical Report states the toxic chemicals were discharged from 1,305 facilities directly into the environment as routine releases, unplanned or accidental releases, or transfers to off-site treatment facilities.

"This report is important because it provides the IEPA with the information we must have to focus on some of the state's pressing pollution problems," said IEPA Director Mary A. Gade.

The total amount of toxic chemicals released into the environment was 17,371,498 pounds fewer than the amount released in 1989.

However, Director Gade said this reduction does not lead to any simple conclusions. The number of facilities reporting has changed and some chemicals were dropped from or added to a list established by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Gade said that even though toxic chemicals are routinely released into the environment, a public health problem can occur only if a person is exposed to toxic chemicals.

"Even after exposure, a health risk depends on a number of factors such as the substance present, the dosage, how the substance was ingested, the age of the person, the gender, and genetics," Gade said.

The report indicates that 88,091,624 pounds of toxic pollutants were emitted to the air in 1990 from point sources such as stacks and vents or from non-point (fugitive) sources such as emissions from open-top holding tanks, wastewater streams and ponds, or from product loss.

A total of 7,112,579 pounds of toxic chemicals was discharged to waterways and 62,569,225 pounds of toxics were sent to publicly owned treatment works (POTW) for treatment. Much of the material discharged is acid which is neutralized before being released.

Wins trip to Hawaii

Margaret Kuenkler of Granite City has been named one of two nationwide winners of a fully-paid, one-week trip to Hawaii, courtesy of her employer, Transamerica Insurance Group. The Hawaiian trip was awarded to Kuenkler in recognition of her achievements in attaining the highest volume of total insurance in the Excess Property and Casualty Division from January through June 1992.

Kuenkler's efforts exceeded those of all other Excess Division underwriters throughout the nation who participated in the six-month competition.

An underwriting supervisor in the St. Louis office of Transamerica, Kuenkler has been employed with the company for five years, and has been a member of the profession for 36 years. She and her husband plan to visit Hawaii during the winter.

Chiropractors take part in study

Two chiropractors from this region recently took part in a milestone research project for the chiropractic profession. Participants were Mark J. Eavenson and Walter M. Hendke. They were among 40 percent of licensed chiropractors nationwide to represent their profession by providing information for a Survey of Chiropractic Practice.

The survey was developed and conducted by the National Board of Chiropractic Examiners, working in conjunction with state licensing board members, educators, and field practitioners. The NBCE is the international testing agency for chiropractic health care.

The NBCE project was undertaken to define the tasks, duties and professional responsibilities common to licensed U.S. chiropractors.

Consolidated Communications opens southwest Illinois office

Consolidated Communications, a 98-year-old Illinois-based telecommunications company, has expanded its business long-distance service to southwestern Illinois with a new local office.

After operating six months, the new Fairview Heights office has exceeded projected sales goals by more than 20 percent, according to Regional Manager Michael Smith.

"The results have been better than we anticipated," Smith said. "Opening a regional office has helped us serve our clients even more effectively than we had expected."

Consolidated currently provides fiber-optic network services to large and small southwestern Illinois businesses, including Korte Construction, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the Bank of Edwardsville, Granite City Steel and Concorde Trading Company.

Fiber optic technology is said to be reliable, high-speed and nearly error-free, with an error rate of one per 250 million words compared to one per 25,000 words for normal copper wire.

"Consolidated is different from other telecommunications companies because we are more than a long-distance carrier. We handle technical data networking as well," Smith said.

"Our communications engineers analyze each company's total voice and data needs and then design the best network configuration."

"We continually focus on applications that are important to the region we're serving," Smith said.

Consolidated found that 60 to 70 percent of business calls in this area stay in the Midwest, so the company designed its long-distance service for those calls.

The result is a choice of calling plan rates and discounts that are the most competitive in Illinois and eastern Missouri, with discounts that save businesses as much as 20 percent, Smith said.

In a recent audit by the Springfield accounting firm Koeber, Eck and Brackel, telephone bills of 20 central Illinois businesses were studied, to compare other long-distance carriers' rates with Consolidated.

Consolidated's Tel-A-Path plan was the most cost-efficient for all 20 companies, with average savings of more than 17 percent. More than 10,000 Illinois businesses have selected Consolidated's long-distance services to central Illinois in 1991.

The firm is one of the largest full-service telecommunications companies in the country, employing more than 900 people.

Regional environmental conference set for Oct. 13

The sixth annual St. Louis Regional Environmental Conference entitled "The Continuing Environmental Challenge" will be held Tuesday, Oct. 13, at Marriott's Pavilion Hotel.

Scheduled speakers include G. Tracy Mehan III, associate deputy administrator of the United States Environmental Protection Agency and former director of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources; Ronald Kucera, acting director of the Missouri DNR; and Mary Gade, director of the Illinois EPA.

Sponsored by the Regional Commerce and Growth Association's Energy and Environment Committee, the conference will start at 8:30 a.m. and adjourn at 4:30 p.m. Twenty-one organizations are conference cosponsors.

The pre-registration price is $60, including lunch and conference materials. Registration after Oct. 9 is $85. For reservations, call Michele Gloriot at 444-1142 or 1-800-444-SOLD. The conference committee said the program will provide an opportunity to learn of current and projected environmental protection and regulation activities from national and regional environmental professionals.

More importantly, participants will be interacting with the professionals, with an opportunity to express their opinions and perhaps influence future policies.

The significance to commerce and industry of topics in the areas of air, solid and hazardous waste, and water quality will be discussed. Situations regarding environmental risk communication and community involvement will also be reviewed.

Dr. Thomas D'Amico, professor of economics at the Loyola College in Maryland, will be the luncheon speaker, discussing environmental protection in this country in contrast to the international scene.

Phil Johnson presents Rose Stern with the Distinguished Member Award for Community Service.

Janet Partney is named local Realtor of Year

Janet Partney has been named the Realtor of the Year by the Granite City Board of Realtors. She is a Realtor with D.W. Brown Realtors in Granite City.

Rose Stern, also a Realtor with D.W. Brown Realtors of Granite City, received the Distinguished Member Award for Community Service. She holds a director's position with the Granite City Board of Realtors.

Partney was the 1992 project co-chairman for Christmas in April.

She is associated with Granite Sheet Metal Works Inc. and the Partney Estates subdivision; and is team leader of the Bayhill Village subdivision in Glen Carbon.

A charter member and past president of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce Women's Division, she is past president of the Granite City Jayceettes, past chairman of the Cancer Society drive for the Quad City area, a co-chairman for the Granite City Diamond Jubilee and a member of the Granite City Booster Club.

Stern has served on the Tri-City Area YMCA board of directors for six years. She is a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division.

A member and past president of the Business and Professional Women, Stern is a member of the Madison-Venice Rotary Club and a volunteer for the American Heart Association.

Partney and Stern were honored by the Granite City Board of Realtors and the Illinois Association of Realtors at an awards banquet held in conjunction with the Illinois Association of Realtors' June business meetings at the Ramada Renaissance Hotel in Springfield on June 10.

Realtor of the Year is the highest honor the association presents.

The award recognizes personal leadership and service qualities applied to the real estate industry and to community, civic and charitable causes.

Simon's new book selling well

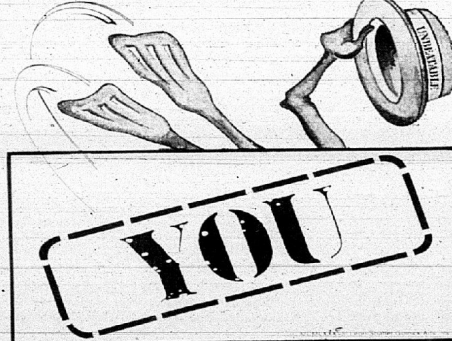

Sen. Paul Simon's new book, "Advice and Consent," has sold out its first printing of 7,500 copies and is going into a second printing.

The book, which hit the bookstores June 29, deals with the history of Senate confirmations of U.S. Supreme Court nominees.

About half of the book focuses on the failed nomination of Robert Bork and the confirmation of Justice Clarence Thomas. Simon opposed both nominees.

"Advice and Consent" is Simon's 13th book, all non-fiction.

A resident of Makanda and former resident of Troy, Simon is in his second six-year Senate term. He formerly represented the Granite City area in the Illinois House and Illinois Senate.

Open house tea at preschool

An open house tea will be hosted from 10 a.m. to noon Thursday, Sept. 3, at the Little Lamb Preschool in the basement of Hope Lutheran Church, 3715 Wabash Ave.

The event is designed to allow parents and children to visit the facility and have an opportunity to meet the teachers.

The school will officially begin on Tuesday, Sept. 4. The 3-year-old pupils will attend on Tuesday and Thursday while the 4-year-olds will meet on Monday, Wednesday, Friday. The morning classes are scheduled from 9-15 to 11:30 a.m. and the afternoon classes are from 12:15 to 2:30 p.m.

There are a few openings in the afternoon classes. Anyone interested in the program is invited to attend the open house or call the church at 876-7568 or Sarah Repp at 931-1256.

Color guard wins competition

The Venice-Madison Post 307 American Legion Color Guard placed first place in two recent competitions.

The Color Guard won the contest at the Department of Illinois Convention in Springfield on July 18. This is the second year that the group placed first in the American Legion Color Guard Contest.

On Aug. 16, the Color Guard won the contest at the Illinois State Fair held in Springfield.

Eagles consider changes

Proposed changes to Eagles Auxiliary 1126 bylaws were read at the regular meeting by Billie Schuler and Helen Mueller. The changes will be read at three meetings and then will be discussed by members before accepting.

Secretary Vincine Zerlan read one application for membership, and members balloted on one application and investigated one.

President Joanna Spencer reported that the auxiliary will host a National Food Store dinner at the Eagles Home at 6:30 p.m. on Nov. 14. Tickets will be $4 and proceeds will benefit the Alzheimer's Study Project. All prizes will be awarded. Tickets may be purchased from various members.

VFW Auxiliary plans calendar for next year

The regular monthly meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1300 Ladies Auxiliary was held on Aug. 11.

Committee packets received at the recent district officers training were distributed to the appropriate chairwomen.

After the meeting, sandwiches were served. A short meeting of the Ways and Means Committee was held, and a calendar for the upcoming year was planned. Friday, Sept. 18, is the beginning of the weekly fish fry.

A visit to the Cochran Veterans Hospital was made on Aug. 22. The ladies entertained the veterans with bingo and provided fruits and desserts as refreshments.

Books, tablets, lap robes and small sundry items were also taken to the distributed by the VFW representatives at a later date.

BPW hears about convention

The Gateway Business and Professional Women's organization held its monthly meeting June 24 at Wilson Park for its "Membership-Friendship Nite."

A potluck was enjoyed by the membership and their guests. Guests for the evening were: Chris Warren, Donna Jones, LaVelle Stephens, Lou Ann Nugent and Verka Lindner.

President Ollie Derr gave a report on the Illinois Federation state Convention in Chicago that she and Ruth Nicholas attended as delegates. An installation ceremony was conducted by Annellen Smith, a past Illinois Federation state president.

Officers installed were: Linda Hiltabrand, president; Gail Guthrie, president-elect; Susan Tungate, first vice president; Patricia McNicholas, second vice president; Cathy Castillo, recording secretary; and Jan Cetwinski, treasurer. Both Smith and Castillo are members of the Granite City BPW.

Hiltabrand chose as her theme "Blazing New Trails" and encouraged the membership to become informed and aware politically to help make changes in dead end jobs and have self-sufficiency and knowledge with all working women.

Entertainment was provided by Fantasia Productions of Chicago with a musical medley of Frank Webber, featuring selections from "Cats" and "Jesus Christ Superstar." Phantom of the Opera and "Evita."

The prayer was given by Ruth Nicholas and Pledge of Allegiance by Pauline Dubish, with Derr being the recipient of the Traveling Friendship Basket.

Sibling class

Julia White

Julia "Peggy" (Senecyn) White, 89, of Granite City, died at 8:45 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 27, 1992, at St. John's Medical Center, St. Louis, where she was a patient for one day. She had been ill for a few months.

Mrs. White was born Aug. 4, 1923, in Madison and was a resident of Granite City for 34 years. She was employed as a supply clerk at the Granite City Army Depot. She was a member of Church of Christ, 28th Street and Washington Ave., Granite City, for 37 years.

Survivors include her husband, William E. White, whom she married Nov. 10, 1945, in Granite City; twin daughters, Janet and Jane White, both of Granite City; one son, Richard White of Decatur; three brothers, John Senecyn of Madison, Mike Senecyn of Troy and Pete Senecyn of Belleville; four sisters, Mary Thomas and Ann Mudrosic, both of Madison, Mildred Podrazz of Collinsville, and Helen Goolsby of West Palm Beach, Fla.; and four grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Alex and Anna (Minn) Senecyn, and twin brother, Alex Senecyn, Jr. Burial will be held from 5 to 8 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30, 1992, at Irwin Chapel, 3660 Maryville Road, Granite City, where services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday, with the Rev. Dale Peery, officiating. Burial will be in St. John Cemetery, Granite City.

William Ashford

William J. Ashford, 76, of Madison died at 12:09 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 27, 1992, at the Elmhurst Care Center, Maryville, where he had been a patient for four and a half months. He had been ill for five years.

Mr. Ashford was born Oct. 30, 1915, in Kevill, Ky., and was a resident of Madison for most of his life.

He was employed for 23 years as a welder at Conalco, retiring in 1975. He was a member of First Baptist Church of Madison, Masonic Triple Lodge 835 and New Hope Chapter 432 of the Order of Eastern Star.

Survivors include his wife, Gertrude (Holloway) Ashford, whom he married March 22, 1937, in Madison; three sons, William H. Ashford of Conroe, Texas, Dennis Ashford of Lee's Summit, Mo., and Paul T. Ashford of Collinsville; two brothers, John Ashford of Highland and Paul Ashford of Madison; one sister, Mary Knoblauch of East Alton; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Carl and Ida (Meggison) Ashford.

Services were conducted Saturday at Lahey-Sedlack Funeral Home, Madison, by the Rev. John Knapp. Burial was at Sunset Hill Memorial Estates near Edwardsville.

Memorials are suggested for First Baptist Church of Madison or the American Heart Association.

have expressed any regret at the decision. "That was quite a return on an investment when they built the old pool," board commissioner George Sykes said Wednesday.

"I think a lot of people are for it. And we're going to give people a chance to have their say, which is the only way to go about it."

Renovation of the 1939 pool and bathhouse in 1992-93 would have cost an estimated $641,823. In that plan, the bathhouse would have improved, the bottom of the pool and the walls would have been redone, and a fiberglass liner might have been installed.

"I'm not satisfied with a renovation," commissioner Ron Farney said. "We would have to replace almost everything, any way."

"We'd be getting close to what the new pool would cost. More people in the city would use a new pool."

Another possible approach that was considered called for rehabilitating the old bathhouse and constructing a new pool at the existing pool site.

Instead, a new pool is to be built in Wilson Park near the ice skating rink. That would enable locks and parking spaces to be utilized in the wintertime by ice skaters and in the summertime by swimmers.

There are some tentative plans to backfill the old pool area, renovate the bathhouse, and build a small amphitheater. That idea has been mentioned but it has not been pursued actively.

Morale

ter expressing his loss of confidence in Knight, and will send the letter to Mayor Von Dee Cruse and each member of the City Council.

Union President Ken Crawford would not comment on the matter until the letter has been received by Cruse and the aldermen.

"I think, as a courtesy, we should let the letter be read before they read it in the newspaper," Crawford said.

Knights officers confirmed that manpower was one of several topics discussed prior to the vote.

There are all kinds of reasons," another officer said. "I'm sure some of the votes (against the shift) were motivated by politics, and some of them were motivated by what some of the guys truly perceive as legitimate problems."

Knight said Friday he hopes that, eventually, the dissension among the shift and things will get back to normal.

"Sooner or later, this is going to have to stop. We have to decide whether to get back to police work or keep cutting each other down," Knight said.

He said he and his police officer is "a hard job" and he appreciates the "fine work" of his officers. Alderman Dan Brown, the only candidate to have announced his intention to run for mayor in next April's election, said "politics" is Cruse's "pat answer for any problem."

"If the vote" was motivated by politics, it wasn't from me. I didn't even know there was going to be a meeting," Brown said. "All I know is I've heard rumors for about two years about the morale problem (in the department)."

Apparently in response to officers' growing concerns over the limited number of patrol officers, Knight said Wednesday morning announced he will move two division captains to patrol duty.

Capt. Dave Ruebhausen of the Service Division and Capt. Dip Pomeroy of the Patrol Division were placed on regular duty.

The captains will have their choice of first-line supervisory duties at the shift commander's desk, or patrolling the streets, Knight said. Either way, the move will make patrol officers available for patrol.

The department currently consists of the chief, three captains, four sergeants, 11 sergeants, four detectives and 26 patrolmen.

However, not all patrolmen have strict patrol responsibilities. Two men are being used as an undercover drug enforcement team. Another man is working with the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois.

One officer takes care of towed and stolen automobiles. Another is mandated paperwork on DUI (driving under the influence) offenses, acts as a liaison between the department and the court system, and is the crime prevention officer in charge of neighborhood watch programs.

Yet another officer works during the school year as a DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) officer, making presentations to school children.

The City Council voted more than a year ago to eliminate a police officer position from the city's municipal code.

Several aldermen said at the time that the move was designed to eliminate automatic promotions to fill vacancies when ranking officers leave the department.

"There's too many chiefs and not enough Indians," Alderman Dan Partney said at the time. He repeated that comment again Wednesday evening after hearing of the restructuring.

He said that, although the manning table was eliminated, a patrolman was promoted to sergeant earlier this year as soon as a vacancy was created by retirement.

Fans get chance to see Garth Brooks

By Ann-Marie Campos, Staff writer

It was Christmas in August at the St. Louis Marriott Hotel Tuesday.

While country music performer Garth Brooks goes to an early start with his Christmas album, "Beyond the Season," produced by Liberty Records, and premiered in stores the same day.

"This album is meant to feel what Christmas day is like, the loving and caring," Brooks said. "I'm glad Daddy's not sick anymore."

Garth interrupted his six-month national tour of 77 cities, which included a performance at the Riverport Amphitheatre Saturday night, to promote his latest album with a press conference supporting Feed The Children, an international nonprofit Christian organization that provides food, clothing and medical equipment to children in need.

It's important to educate the U.S. about starving children being right here in our backyard," Brooks said.

For every compact disc or cassette sold, $1 will be donated by Liberty Records to the organization. The goal is $3 million.

"Ninety-three cents of every $1 goes to the kids. The first thing that I want to know is where the money is going to," Brooks said. "There's four billion charities out there, and to pick one is tough."

Picking the songs for the album wasn't as difficult. Brooks selected songs that had special meaning to him, which included his favorites such as "Go Tell It On the Mountain" and "Silent Night."

"I can remember hearing 'Go Tell It On the Mountain' (recorded by Mahalia Jackson) in my parents' home. And 'Silent Night' tells of my favorite Christmas," he said.

Brooks said his one-month-old daughter, Taylor Mayne Pearl Brooks, has increased his desire to help other children who are less fortunate. Her birth also has Brooks considering early retirement in an effort to spend more time with his family, however, he hopes to find a balance between the two.

To launch the campaign, local sponsors donated a total of $9,792 at the press conference, which had been previously collected from various promotions.

For any Garth Brooks fan, the chance to see the top artist was a cherished moment. And for the 18-year-old gets lucky, wins ticket

Thousands of Garth Brooks fans were left empty handed after tickets to his recent concert sold out in 70 minutes, but not Chrissy Martinich.

The 18-year-old Belleville resident was one of the minority to get tickets to the concert held at Riverport Amphitheatre Saturday night.

"I couldn't believe it," Martinich said. "My parents had just had the license plate number on their car changed, so when they saw the number I didn't realize it."

She had a WIL FM 92 "Garth" bumpersticker, which enabled many fans who didn't get tickets during the random drawing of line tickets for his concert, the one-hour press conference was the next best thing.

"My kids were so thrilled to get to go," said Cindy Ware, a Scott Air Force Base resident. "They're just crazy about him."

"We tried so hard to get tickets. The competition was too tough. Concert tickets sold out in a mere one hour and 10 minutes."

"This year I feel very stupid," Brooks candidly said. "I didn't expect the sell-out. Next year if one brother would only show, there will be one show. If they want six shows, they'll get six shows."

Looking back I realize I sold myself and my listeners short. After the sell out, we were diligently tried to get tickets through other means. They tried the handicapped seats, since their son is in a wheelchair, and local radio station contests.

her to participate in the radio station's ticket give away. Through the past few weeks, WIL would announce locations where ticket drawings would be held and listeners had 30 minutes to arrive at the location.

Martinich had been shopping at the mall and was a way from her Belleville home when the location was announced. Despite the fact of the tough competition, she retraced her journey to Fairview Heights and found about 60 other fans had made it to the drawing.

With a check for $1,000 for the American Lung Association, Al Barnes, owner, Granite City Rapid Lube, Karen Lewis, senior field director, American Lung Association of Illinois, and Gary Warren, owner, Granite City Rapid Lube.

2 receive philanthropy award

Granite City natives and owners of Rapid Lube Inc., Al Barnes and Gary Warren, recently received the 1991 Golden Touch National Association of Independent Lubes' Community Service Award for their support of the American Lung Association of Illinois.

Rapid Lube competed with more than 500 businesses throughout the United States for this award.

In June 1991, Rapid Lube donated $1 to the American Lung Association of Illinois for each car that received a full-service oil change at each of the five Rapid Lube locations: Granite City, Belleville, Alton, Jerseyville and Edwardsville. The dollars added up to a donation of more than $3,000 to support the American Lung Association's environmental education programs.

In addition to a plaque, Barnes and Warren received $1,000 to give to the charity of their choice, the American Lung Association of Illinois.

The American Lung Association is the oldest voluntary health agency in the United States.

Founded to fight tuberculosis, the American Lung Association now fights all forms of lung disease, the third leading killer in the United States.

Something new on NHL scene called progress

Despite the best efforts of a group of numbskulls over the past 15 years, the National Hockey League might finally be making some progress.

Not all of the ninjas are out of power yet, so things could turn ugly again. But there is hope. The new regime headed by interim president Gil Stein and L.A. Kings owner Bruce McNall shows signs of leading the league out of a black hole.

It is universally known that the NHL has been run poorly for an eternity. Some people don't care that much because they don't really like hockey. But for those of us who love the sport, a well-managed, high-quality professional league in North America will lead to true happiness.

League legislators took a step this week towards a further cut-down on violent play. An effort is being made to rid the league of players who get by only on their intimidation skills. I would love to see fighting outlawed entirely (except for the home team involved). But I'm convinced that is unrealistic.

An occasional spontaneous brawl between two consenting pros can be accepted. It's up to the officials to determine if both parties are consenting. That's scary because the NHL has the least competent and courageous officiating of any major sport.

Penalties — other than coincidental calls on both teams — just aren't called late in close games, and certainly not in overtime. The players know it and liberties are taken. NFL and NBA officials aren't afraid to throw the flag or whistle the fouls in the final seconds during the course of a big play. Hockey deserves the same.

The increased attention to cutting down on mindless violence was — not coincidentally — I believe — linked to reports that the NHL is close to a contract with ESPN and ABC. To the majority of fans not able to get SportsChannel America for the past four years, this is like manna from heaven.

When played right, hockey is the world's greatest sport, and No. 2 on the list isn't even close. The league needs time to find a happy medium between the Broad Street Bullies and a Swedish Figure Skating League, but it can happen. The NBA market is players like crazy, and the league thrives. The NHL has some pretty marketable chaps of its own, starting with No. 16 (See WHALEY, Page 18)

Warriors get two wins despite off day in season-opening meet

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

Thursday's opener for the Warrior golf team was confusing in several ways, but they were still able to come away with two wins in a quad meet at Arlington Golf Course.

It wasn't so much that the Warriors were better than anyone else. They were just weren't as bad.

"We had a miserable outing," said Warrior coach Russ Chappell. "I'm terribly disappointed in our seniors. Everything went wrong."

A steady morning rain did not result in cancellation, though Chappell might have been better off if it had. The lowest score among the seniors was by Jim Clutts, who came in with a 42.

Jim Clutts ends up leading all the seniors with a 42, and he was seventh on our list coming in to the match," said Chappell.

Chappell used a different format for keeping score in the match against Triad. Civic Memorial and Highland. Out of his top six golfers, only two — seniors Gabe Mitchell (43) and Dan Petersen (43) — counted against all the teams.

Against CM, their scores were combined with John Green (44) and Clutts for a 172, good enough to beat the Eagles by 13 strokes. CM was led by Matt Holliday's 40.

Ryan Smzynarek's round of 42 was tallied with Green, Mitchell, and Petersen for a 172 against Highland. Highland, which beat Granite City with a team total of 167, was led by Adam Jacoby's 40.

Granite City beat Triad with a 167. Matt Gindler led Triad (183) with a 39. Ken Felty, who tied Gindler for the best round of the day with a 39, and Josh McCelland (42) combined with Mitchell and Petersen to give the Warriors the win.

"The underclassmen played well," said Chappell. "Felty has all the potential. He'll develop into a fine player over time."

They're back '91 state champ Kahoks should be top rival again

By David Wilhelm
Staff writer

The season's going to be two parts. Once they've had a month to work hard, I think they'll be able to make a run at it.

Ron Rowden
Kahok soccer coach

Last season, the Collinsville High School soccer team had enough experience and depth to give coach Ron Rowden a comfortable feeling.

When the Kahoks trailed 1-0 or 2-1, Rowden didn't worry. He knew that, eventually, one of his players would step forward and make something happen. In most cases, someone did. CHS won the state championship.

But as Tuesday's opener against Edwardsville looms, Rowden — a Granite City native — is placing emphasis on strong starts. Falling behind by one or two goals this season could be destructive for the considerably more inexperienced Kahoks.

Twelve seniors from 1991's graduated, leaving nine returnees. Two other players — full-back Josh Jenkins and goalkeeper Cory Cooper — transferred to the Warriors.

High-pressure offense is in the Kahoks' plans, with continued importance placed on tight marking as Collinsville and Granite City again figure to battle it out for area supremacy.

"We'll be a team heavy into marking one-on-one," said Rowden. "We can't afford to get down early, with a young team. We want to lead from the start."

Rowden expects seniors Tim Galvan (left wing) and Derek Cooper (right wing/midfielder), and junior Mike Darnell (forward) to be the Kahoks' top offensive players.

Galvan is one of the team's fastest and most aggressive players, while Darnell contributed six goals and three assists as a sophomore. Cooper, meanwhile, made the all-state tournament team last November.

"We've got players who can put the ball in the net," said Rowden. "We've got five forward combination midfielders who can score."

Rowden said Galvan, Cooper and Darnell "are capable of scoring double figures in goals. They have all the speed in the world and they're the ones who played in the state finals. They're ready to get the season going."

Returning seniors are midfielders Rick Artine, Dave Kirksey (See KAHOKS, Page 18)

Local tennis player advances to sectional

Tom Boker of Granite City and his teammates nearly won the men's United States Tennis Association Missouri Valley Sectional recently.

The Oakhill Racquet Club of Belleville lost 3-2 to Nebraska in the 4.5 Team Tennis Championships sectional finals held in Kansas City, Kan. Boker posted wins over Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Oklahoma and Heart of America, and finished his first season with Oakhill with a 2-1 record.

Boker, 32, also teamed with Belleville's Scott McLean to win the Granite City Invitational Tennis Tournament men's doubles title two weeks ago.

The Oakhill team was 23-2 in the regular season, competing mostly against other St. Louis-area clubs, and won the St. Louis District championship. Other team members are Bob Keefe, Jim and John Barenkamp, Larry Itiner, Cliff Fields, Larry Bates, Phil Cohn, Bob Harshman, Bruce Martin and team captain Mike James.

Boker has been playing tennis for 20 years, and advanced to the IHSAA state tournament twice while playing for Dick Harman at Granite City South (1977-78).

Golf-a-thon slated at Tee-Up Monday

Tee-Up Golf Center in Fairmont City will hold a golf-a-thon Monday from 7-9 p.m.

Golfers will compete in the following categories:

—Closest to the hole (125 yards)

—Chipping

—Seven-hole putting

—Sand shot

Points will be earned in each category, based on distance from the hole or fewest shots. A $25 entry fee will cover the rest of competition, prizes, food and drinks.

For more information or to register, call John Randall at Tee-Up (271-4000) or Bob Brockland at 271-2700.

Granite Bowl bowler is perfect in Chicago

Jason Hoult, who bowls in the Big Guy-Little Guy League at Granite Bowl, rolled a perfect game Aug. 21 at the Junior Stars Championship Scholarship Tournament in Chicago.

Hoult, who is from Chesterfield, Mo., is the son of William and Janis Hoult and has been bowling for seven years. He has won one Gateway Classic and has six high qualifiers in Archway at Gateway competition. He won the local invitational scholarship title in 1988.

"I was mainly concerned with getting the 11th strike because I knew I could get the last ball to the pocket and carry at least nine pins," Hoult said. "The week before I had the first nine strikes and messed up on the 10th ball. As far as being nervous, I was, but having a previous experience of rolling 300 helped me stay calm and collected."

QCSA seeks coaches, players for fall session

The Quad-Cities Soccer Association is looking for someone interested in coaching a soccer team for boys and girls born in 1984.

QCSA is also looking for boys and girls born in 1983 and 1984 to play in the fall session. Anyone wanting to play, coach or wanting more information should call the QCSA hotline at 876-9000.

and Nick Docter, forward Sean Ellis, sweeper Chris Sandrowski and goalkeeper Brett Boerm, who is a candidate to replace three-year starter Mike Bolandis.

Junior Clay Hunter is another goalie Rowden was impressed with during the first week of practice.

"We have two very good keepers now and it'll be interesting to see what happens after the first four games," Rowden said. "I'd like to have a starter, but we may have to platoon."

"The season's going to be two parts. The first half of the season will be a learning process for (the players) and developing their skills where they should be. Once they've had a month to work hard, I think they'll be able to make a run at it."

The Kahoks visit Granite City on Sept. 10, with the Warriors visiting Collinsville on Sept. 29.

right across the river from us. Two more rule changes I would like to see: Allow the two linesmen to call any infractions they see. As it is now, only the referee can call penalties other than a few exceptions. Three men can police 12 skaters better than one. If the league is paying three officials every game, make them work."

The other change would be to lengthen the regular-season overtime to 10 minutes. Most teams can kill five minutes if they really want a tie. A 10-minute extra session would really cut down on those unsatisfying draws.

Both rules would appeal to potential new fans. If hockey can pick up a fair amount of both to add to the hard-core fans, the TV ratings will be satisfactory.

The Blues begin camp at the Brentwood Ice Rink on Sept. 12 under new coach Bob-Plager. The first pre-season game is Sept. 22 at the Arena vs. the expansion Tampa Bay Lightning. Opening night on Oakland Avenue is Oct. 6 vs. the Minnesota North Stars.

Sanford-Brown College offers paralegal assistant program

Sanford-Brown College began offering a new paralegal assistant program last year at its three St. Louis campuses, and over 80 percent of the first graduating classes currently are employed.

Now Sanford-Brown is offering this program at its Granite City campus to similarly help area graduates take advantage of the growing job opportunities with local law firms and attorneys.

The school, located at 3237 West Chain of Rocks Road, now offers a unique 12-month paralegal assistant program that couples clerical course work with in-depth training in legal terminology and forms.

"What we've found at our other campuses is that this program prepares our graduates for a great deal of job opportunities," said Sarah Goldhammer, dean of Sanford-Brown's Granite City campus. "With the dual educational background we provide, our graduates offer employers a great deal of flexibility in skills and, therefore, can fill a variety of roles, from legal research assistant to legal administrative assistant to deputy clerks."

"Based on our own local research and experience, and from industry findings by the U.S. Department of Labor, we know the jobs are out there," said Sanford-Brown President Stephen Rothweiler. "We've had great success in getting jobs for our St. Louis graduates and we intend to do the same in the Granite City area."

In addition to the 12 months of class work, students also undergo a 99-hour legal practicum. The internship program has been very successful with previous student classes. St. Louis students have been placed in the circuit clerk's office in St. Louis and County, in the St. Louis County prosecutor's office and in the St. Charles County counselor's office.

Clowns help celebrate birthday

An open house, Christian birthday party was held from 1 to 6 p.m. Aug. 8 in honor of Ray M. Parchment at his home on Moro Street.

Not only did the guests enjoy clown acts, jokes, humorous surveys, piano duets, solos, and a sing-a-long, but they also enjoyed a time of praise, worship, and testimonies.

Earl Spalding shared several poems that were inspiring, as well as some witty ones. He and his wife, Gertrude have been married 64 years. The honoree, Ray, was enjoying his 65th birthday, which was actually Aug. 7th.

Parchment's party was kept a secret from him until one hour before the guests arrived. At that time, when he was told, he elected to become a clown too.

His wife, Mary, was dressed as a clown, as well as their friend, Joy Silvey from Collinsville. The clowns' names were: Ray Parchment, "Ray O. Sunshine", Mary Parchment, "A. Merry Heart", and Joy Silvey, "Jolly Joy".

The clown theme was prevalent in the decorations. Each guest had a green circle painted on the top of the nose, and each selected a clown's name for the party.

Refreshments were served and door prizes given. Despite of a power outage, the guests enjoyed a fun-filled afternoon.

Those attending were: Ellie Bonatt, Lou Ann Phillips, Walter and Marie Carter, Norris and Joy Silvey, Tom and Fleeta Jackson, Eleanor Polizzi, Bunny Biggs, Judy Heaton, Sandy Fleming, Mac and Lillian Lance, Roger, Sondra and Beth Kleckes, Earl and Gertrude Spalding, Pastor Ben and Alice Leonard, Gloria Johnson, Wesley and Jerry Hursey, Matilla Mason and Janice Gibson.

BPW hears from fire interventionist

The Gateway Business and Professional Women's organization held its monthly meeting July 22 at Brenda's Restaurant.

Shirley Rapoff, program chairman, introduced Reggie Young, the speaker for the evening. He is the juvenile firesetting interventionist and child care worker in the Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Program at St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City.

"Can you imagine toddlers growing into firesetters," he asked the members and guests. Young said 25 to 40 percent of fires are started by children and 80 percent of childhood deaths is caused by them.

Young said there are four types of firesetters:

Those 3 to 7 years old are the curiosity seekers; 8 to 9 year olds have domestic crises or feel neglected; 10-12 year olds problem behavior is often due to school or peers; and 12-17 year olds often hold anger and resentment and fight with peers.

Young usually works closely with Capt. Bob Dawes of the Granite City Fire Department, especially with the juvenile types due to sometime court matters.

Young said research with these youngsters usually reveals the trauma of abuse, loss of a parent, neglect, low self-esteem, lack of motivation, poverty, broken family relationships. All of these factors often mix to produce this behavior problem.

President Ollie Derr reported goals had been sent to the Illinois Federation State President Linda Hildebrand. The club also had 12 members who had paid their dues; 16 were needed to equalize.

Derr encouraged the members to attend the Sept. 4 President's Council meeting, which will be on "Report Writing."

Dirty Dozen Brass Band does more than brass

By Alan Sculley
Correspondent

Look at the instrumentation of the Dirty Dozen Brass Band, and it fits the traditional brass band structure of two trumpets, two saxophones, trombone, sousaphone, bass drum and snare drum. But that's pretty much where the similarities end.

Our intention in the beginning was to be a brass band, a traditional New Orleans brass band," said founding member Gregory Davis. "But the more and more we experimented and played around with different things, we realized we could be a band, not just a brass band."

So I think we probably rubbed some people the wrong way, but it was not the wrong way for us because we had decided what we wanted to do. And what we did not want to do was sound like all the other brass bands that had come before us," he said.

Over their 15-year history, the members of the Dirty Dozen Brass Band have succeeded mightily on that score.

Though the group members have respected traditions, their willingness to quicken and diversify the rhythms of brass bands and add elements of jazz, pop, funk and other styles to the musical mix has set the Dirty Dozen apart.

Even the aforementioned instrumentation is as traditional as it might seem.

Especially unusual is the role of the baritone saxophone and sousaphone. Where many use the baritone sax as an accompaniment instrument, the Dirty Dozen's Roger Lewis had other ideas.

Roger Lewis was able to play the melodies and make it a melody instrument," Davis said. "And the other thing that's different is the sousaphone. We use the sousaphone as a bass and not just pompah."

However, for a time last fall, there was a chance the Dirty Dozen would have to abandon its trademark instrumental approach when sousaphonist Kirk Joseph and his brother, trombonist Charles Joseph, left the group. The other players—Davis and Efram Towns on trumpets, Lewis, Kevin Harris on tenor sax, Jewel Marshall on snare drum and Lionel Batiste on bass drum—remained.

"We were worried about that," Davis said of the departure of the Joseph brothers. "For a while, we thought we were going to have to hire an electric bass player."

But an acquaintance, Keith Anderson, who occasionally subbed for Kirk Joseph at Dirty Dozen gigs, stepped in, showing in the process he had mastered Joseph's innovative bass-type approach to sousaphone. Meanwhile, Revert Andrews, a trombonist who had played with Anderson in some New Orleans groups, took over for Charles Joseph.

"They sort of complement each other, and when we're learning new stuff or things they haven't figured yet, they sit around and help each other," Davis said.

As it was, the Joseph brothers remained in the lineup long enough to make a final appearance on the band's latest release, "Open Up (Whatcha Gonna Do For The Rest Of Your Life)," which is widely considered the most adventurous Dirty Dozen effort yet.

The CD includes an ambitious six-part suite written by Davis called "The Lost Souls (Of Southern Louisiana)." "Remember When," a Harris tune that offers a swinging mix of funk and jazz fusion, and a punchy rhythm and blues-based track written by Lewis called "Use Your Brain."

"Open Up" is the fifth Dirty Dozen album in seven years, but the group has a considerably longer history.

The band formed in 1977, a time when only a few brass bands remained in New Orleans. Though the Dirty Dozen filled a void—brass bands had for years played at parades, funerals and picnics—the reasons for slaking the group were musical rather than financial, Davis said.

"I think when we started the Dirty Dozen, we had just gotten tired of being hired every now and then as sidemen in someone else's brass band or someone else's jazz band or combo," he said. "We just wanted an opportunity to learn some music and prove if we were hired and given a chance, we could be more than sidemen."

Another step forward came in the mid-'80s when the group's first album, "My Feet Can't Fall Me Now" in 1984 and "Mardi Gras In Montreaux" in 1986.

A major label contract with Columbia Records has since yielded three more albums—"Woodoo" in 1989, "The New Orleans Album" in 1990 and "Open Up" in late 1991.

A steady string of guest appearances on albums by Elvis Costello, the Manhattan Transfer, Buckwheat Zydeco and others has further raised the group's profile.

Despite all the activity, Davis' goals remain simple.

"Personally, I want to write and continue to explore what we can get out of the Dirty Dozen. But I also would like to do projects with other musicians, and hopefully one day be able to do something with some of the African musicians," he said. "And I like some of the stuff I hear coming out of the Caribbean Islands. And a lot of the jazz and blues artists around here (in New Orleans). I'd like to get a chance to do some stuff with them."

The Dirty Dozen Brass Band will perform Sept. 2 through 5 at the Just Jazz club at the Hotel Majestic, 1019 Pine St. Show times each night are 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. There is no cover charge, although there is a two-drink minimum per set.

Fonda hopes for success with 'Female'

By Harry Hamn
Correspondent

Once while in acting class at the Lee Strasberg Theater Institute in New York, Bridget Fonda was asked by the instructor how she intended to get hired for her first job.

The 29-year-old Fonda recalls the question, and remembers telling the instructor that her family was "in the business."

Fonda's reply was an understatement. She is the daughter of Peter Fonda and Susan Brewer. Fonda's parents separated when she was only 8 years old. She was raised by her mother.

Bridget Fonda is the niece of Jane and the granddaughter of the legendary Henry Fonda. She says it's a legacy she's proud of, but one whose shadow oppressed her until she gathered the strength to break away from it and develop a body of work that clearly identified her as her own person.

Fonda's newest film represents a breakthrough for her in that it is her biggest most commercial role to date. It is the kind of movie that could give her the reputation among Hollywood producers of being a bankable actress.

The film is "Single White Female." Fonda plays Allison Jones, a young professional woman in New York whose life takes a sudden negative turn. It indirectly causes her to become embroiled with an obsessive roommate and forces her to deal with a potentially deadly conflict.

Fonda's adoring, but crazed roommate is played by Jennifer Jason Leigh.

Allie undermines herself by not trusting her instincts and one else to prove she's OK," Fonda says. "That's how she undermines herself. Allie represses the instinctual power within herself. She wants everything to be nice. Because she denies the primitive side of herself, it re-enters her life in the form of this demonic wall."

Since the action gradually intensifies in "Single White Female," Fonda has to take a course in self-defense. It was a course aimed at teaching women how to protect themselves in physically challenging confrontations. It also helped bring an added flavor of realism to her climactic scenes in the apartment with Leigh.

Says Fonda, "Self-defense instructors told me that most women have no trouble learning the techniques of self-defense. The moment of acting to defend themselves is their greatest obstacle, however. Even in staged recreations of street violence or play-acted assaults between students, many women, however well-practiced, just freeze at the thought of really having to defend themselves."

Some of Fonda's previous films include "Shag," "The Godfather, Part 3" and "Doc Hollywood." Fonda received a Golden Globe nomination in 1989 for her portrayal of Mandy Rice-Davies in the film "Scandal."

Her next movie is an upcoming release called "Singles." Fonda co-stars with Matt Dillon. She plays a waitress so enamored with the fact that a rock star would actually show a romantic interest in her that she gets her breasts enlarged to please him.

Fonda will soon travel to Arizona to make a film called "Bodies, Rest and Motion."
